CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CAMPAIGN WILL BE STARTED IN ONE WEEK

Committee of Rushville Men Determine to Have Owen L. Charles of Muncie in Charge.

MEETING THIS AFTERNOON

Workers Will be Organized For the Campaign and Sentiment Will be Obtained.

WEEK TO OPEN WITH LECTURE

Originally Intended to Begin Work at Once, But Committee Decides Preparation is Needed.

A whirlwind campaign will be started here next Wednesday night to organize a Chamber of Commerce, it was decided at a meeting of the committee of men which was selected at the mass meeting in the court house assembly room last night and addressed by Owen A. Charles of Muncie, the apostle of the country town.

Preparations for the campaign to begin immediately were made at the meeting last night when the executive committee was selected, but after mature deliberation this afternoon, the committee of men, which was very favorably impressed with Mr. Charles' presentation of the proposition, determined to postpone the campaign a week so that a perfect organization could be arranged and everything would be in readiness for soliciting for members.

The campaign will be opened next Wednesday evening with a monster mass meeting at which Mr. Charles will give his address which is prepared for sleepy towns which have no organization or which have one and are not using it to advantage. A musical program will be arranged and the Rushville band will be asked to play.

The men who were appointed as an executive committee and who reached the conclusion this afternoon were: Frank Wolcott, Ben A. Cox, Willard Amos, E. R. Casady, A. L. Riggs, Jack Knecht, H. G. Hackman, W. E. Wallace, Anthony Schriebe, Dr. C. H. Parsons, A. G. Haydon and R. L. Tompkins were members of the committee but were unable to attend.

Only points of organization were touched on at the mass meeting last night, but the convincing argument of Mr. Charles set the men at the meeting right on the proposition.

At the close Anthony Schriebe, who presided as chairman, called on a number of men and they all spoke enthusiastically in favor of an organization that has the interests of the city at heart. Every man said he was willing to put forth his best efforts to make it go.

Mr. Charles said, as an editor, he attracted the attention of trade papers in the United States, and he was drafted into this business. He attempts to pay expenses, but last year there was a deficit of $1,800, which was met by the 67 trade papers.

Mr. Charles said he found from the census that 639, or thirty per cent of the towns in Indiana lost in population the last decade, and of the number 23 were county seat towns. The idea of the trade journals, he declared, was to stop the trend toward centralization and they are willing to back a movement of this sort, because if the present movement toward the big cities is not stopped, the field for the trade journal propaganda would be lost.

"The want to build up the country

CO-OPERATION. (By O. A. Charles.)

United, communities stand; divided, they stand still.

Organization is the influence that puts the stagnating community on its feet.

Co-operation of business interests works wonders and it works equally well in metropolis or village.

What respect have you for the individual who ignores his business and squanders his resources?

Communities are like men; they must make the most of their environments. How about yours?

town and stop the spending of money in the larger cities," he continued. "I have found in my work that 75 per cent of the merchants are usually the worst offenders. I hope I am hitting somebody. You can't expect the farmer to buy for his wife the clothes here that the merchant's wife will not wear."

There were 71 towns in Indiana last year, he cited, which had a general organization to look after the interests of the community and not one of them lost in population the last decade. He advised against a merchants' association of any sort, even if only in name, because even if it is not restricted, there is an idea that it is.

He said "Chamber of Commerce" was the accepted name for such an organization—one which will get men together and one to which every man can belong. Mr. Charles briefly outlined the plan of organization. He said it had been framed after he had spent two weeks each in ten of the largest cities in the United States, where the Chambers of Commerce were the strongest.

First there is the department of organization, which outlined fully in typewritten forms Mr. Charles has. The department of transportation includes every phase of transportation, not alone railroads and traction lines, but county roads, city streets and numerous other things.

"The department of production," Mr. Charles said, "would be virtually the factory committee. More commercial clubs are wrecked and more towns are put on the ragged edge by the mania to land factories than anything else. Sixty-six per cent of these sort of factories fail, statistics show. Anderson had spent $300,000 in factory bonuses when I went there to organize a Chamber of Commerce, and all but two of them have failed. Any factory you have to buy will not do a town any good. The Chamber of Commerce will handle this question comprehensively. Take care of the people who are here.

"The department of the market" is a very important one. If I should say how much money leaves this town by the mail order route—money you never see again—you would say that man Charles is crazy. If I should say 30 per cent is going out or town and you don't believe it, come to the freight house with me tomorrow and we'll see. We found in Muncie that $100,000 a year in soap clubs alone was leaving the town."

The department of fakes and fakers, he continued, alone would save the dues for most men. He said the business manager of the Lafayette Morning Journal told him three months after the C. of C. had been organized there his dues for three years had been saved. Mr. Charles

MISTAKE FOUND IN CITY BOOKS

Former Clerk Cauley Made Error in Claim Record and Council Almost Paid Out Money.

SALARIES WERE BOOSTED

Men at Plant Were to Get More For Five Days Work Than Sixteen.

Things were slow getting started at the council meeting last night but the finish was rather warm and the meeting did not break up until twelve o'clock. The real blow off did not come until Clerk Gunning started to read the council bills. It was planned to pay the labor bills left over by the old council and Clerk Gunning started in with the claims of the employees against the city as handed over by the Black administration.

The bills were being read off the claim record having been put there by former city clerk Thomas Cauley. At the start of the water and light employees' pay roll it was noticed that the men were receiving too much money. This was first noticed on Henry Joyce. According to the claim record he had $70 coming. The record showed that Joyce received a months pay on Dec. 16 and the pay roll as prepared by Frank Brown, at the water and light plant for the last half of December gave Joyce $30. There were five days that he had coming in the month of January. In other words Joyce was to receive more money for the five days than for sixteen days.

Thomas Cauley, former city clerk when seen this morning stated that it was an accident on his part that the claims were higher than they should be. He explained that it was only recently that the council began paying the water and light employees every two weeks and that before this they had been paid once a month. "I simply forgot that they had only two weeks coming and made it a month instead" said Mr. Cauley. "It was an accident on my part and I would not have had it happen for all the world for coming as it did, throws a bad light on me and the former council."

The council could not explain the difference in the records last night. Had the council allowed the claims as they were on the record they would have paid $192 too much money to water and light employees alone. Joyce and the others were given $42 instead of $70.

The council came almost passing up the bills of the old council once more when the discrepancy was found. When the Black administration went out the entire council bills were turned over to the present council and it was the understanding that if one bill was paid all would be. But this council decided to pay only the labor claims for the present. Former superintendent Brown had a claim for $119 salary, which was not allowed.

Dan Long had a claim for 68 hours on the record for the five days that this council owed. It was pointed out that Long worked nine hours a day and in order to get in a 68 hours it would be necessary for him to work almost 15 hours a day which it is believed he did not do. His claim was cut accordingly. Several of the claims showed that the men did more work in the five days in January than they did in sixteen days in December. The pay roll as handed in to the old council was correct but the mistake was made in placing the amounts in the claim

The funeral services of O. M. Thompson, who died of uremic poisoning at his home in Shelbyville yesterday, will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 at the house, with the Rev. Earl R. North of Shelbyville and the Rev. Samuel Tomlinson of Fairland in charge.

DAMAGE SUIT BEGINS IN COURT

Trial of the Case of William Avery Against the Big Four is Started in Greensburg.

AUTOMOBILE HIT BY A TRAIN

Trial of the case of William Avery, Waldron contractor, against the Big Four railroad for $1,000 damage, which is an outgrowth of the accident at the first crossing north of Milroy last September 1 when a train hit Avery's automobile, was started in Greensburg yesterday. Avery was on the way home from here when the mishap occurred.

Avery avers that at the crossing, vehicles are compelled to descend a sharp grade in approaching the tracks, and that drivers are unable to obtain a clear view of the right-of-way after attaining foot of this declivity.

The plaintiff further alleges that the train emitted no warning signals in time to prevent collision, and that it was being operated at a high and dangerous rate of speed in a reckless manner. He sets forth in the complaint the fact that he and his companion, who was operating the car, were forced to abandon the machine to save their lives.

PLUNGED EAST INTO POVERTY

Thomas Kennedy Tells Miners Convention in Indianapolis New Laws Are Cause.

TARIFF AND CURRENCY BILLS

Many Mines Shut Down and Others Working Only Part Time, Pennsylvania Man Says.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 21.—Advocating a motion to seat delegates from locals in arrears, which was passed, Thomas Kennedy of Hazleton, Pa., told the United Mine Workers of America convention here today that the new tariff and currency laws had plunged the East into poverty.

Many mines were shut down and others are working only part time, Mr. Kennedy stated to the convention.

Several speakers admitted that the delinquent locals were principally in anthracite fields where many operators declined to enforce the collection of union dues at the pay window.

Mr. Kennedy declared that the condition of the miners in parts of the anthracite fields were as dark as those in Colorado or West Virginia, where they have been torn by strikes.

SUBMARINE FOUND TODAY

Work of Raising "A-7" Will Begin at Dawn Tomorrow.

(By United Press.)

Plymouth, Eng., Jan. 21.—"A-7," the submarine which sunk in the bay here almost a week ago was found today and the work of raising will begin at dawn tomorrow. When the word spread abroad, the water front was crowded with people, many of whom were relatives of the dead men. There were eleven men on "A-7."

The Natural Month For Sales

January is known in merchandising as the natural month for "sales."

It is the month of business housecleaning and planning for the new season. Most stores "take stock" and balance their books in January. They are naturally anxious to clean out small lots and turn their wares into cash.

So they make prices accordingly.

Those who like to profit by sales need no urging to read the newspaper advertising these days. They scan every line and they shop knowingly.

It is interesting to watch the way the stores go after business with each turn of the season. Our American merchants are setting an example of progress to all the world.

They know how to make advertising pay you and pay them.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was grandmother's remedy but that has long ago been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds you up, makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

N. G. Clift of Opelika, Ala., says: "Last spring I was all run-down, no strength, no appetite. I took Vinol and was greatly benefited by its use, as I soon felt strong and well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. F. B. Johnson & Co., Druggists, Rushville, Ind.

SHOWS VALUE OF SALVATION

Rev. A. W. Jamieson Says That it is Great Even if Only Measured by Its Cost.

IT IS GREAT IN OTHER WAYS

Especially if it is Measured From What it Saves us, Pastor Declares.

As the week progresses the special meetings at the United Presbyterian church grow in interest. Members of all the churches and other ministers are assisting in the services. More people are becoming interested in the morning prayer meetings and the afternoon Bible study.

"How shall we escape if we neglect so great a salvation," was the text chosen by the Rev. A. W. Jamieson last night. Dr. Jamieson said that this question was not asked that it might be answered. No man can answer it. No angel in heaven, no demon in hell can answer it. God himself cannot tell how a man can escape, if he neglects this so great salvation.

"It is a great salvation," he continued, "great, if measured by its cost. Like our free public schools, our free roads, our free libraries, salvation is free to all, but somebody had to pay for it. It cost God the gift of His Son. It cost Jesus the life of humiliation and His death on the cross. You are redeemed, not with corruptible things like silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ. The wealth of the world could not be measured as the price of salvation. Can we grasp its value by what it cost Jesus.

"It is great, if valued by that from which it saves us. It saves us from the punishment of sin in the world to come, and it saves us from the power of sin in this life. It is a great salvation in that which it saves us. It saves to a Christian character; to a new life; to a brighter hope; to fellowship with God, and God's people; to heaven at last. But the one who neglects this salvation does not receive its benefits. One does not need to oppose it. Christ is presented to be accepted; we are to seek the kingdom of God; to strive to enter in; to put off the old nature; to put on Christ.

"It calls for action. Thought must culminate in faith, soul surrender. Jesus knocks; we must open the door. For the one who neglects this salvation, no other provision is made. Other foundations can no man lay than that is laid, which is Christ Jesus. If we neglect this salvation, we are left without a single hope."

Prayer meetings will be held tomorrow morning as follows: Mrs. John Singer in Pearl street; Mrs. Edgar Ridout in West Ninth; Mrs. Joe Miller in North Willow; Mrs. R. A. Innis in North Harrison, and Mrs. Russell Florence at the corner of Fifth and Arthur.

Ancient Egyptians.

That the ancient Egyptians were not negroes is certain, and it is equally certain that they did not belong to the Semite or Jewish race. Said the late Professor Huxley: "I am not aware that there are any living people who resemble them, except the Dravidian tribes of central India and the Australians, and I have long been inclined to think that the latter are the lowest and the Egyptians the highest members of a race of mankind of great antiquity, distinct alike from Aryan and Turanian on the one side and from negro and negrito on the other." In a word, nobody can say with any degree of assurance what breed of men the builders of the pyramids were.—New York American.

Explorer's Remarkable Feat.

Sir James Barrie's affection for explorers is no new thing. All who know his "Edinburgh Eleven" will remember the eulogy of Joseph Thomson, the Dumfriesshire Scot, who did pioneer work of the Livingstone kind in Africa. It is a fine pen picture of a dour, brave man, but it has flashes of the early Barrie. This, for example: "Perhaps his most remarkable feat consisted in taking a bottle of brandy into the heart of Africa and bringing it back intact."—Glasgow News.

Wm. T. Hodge in "The Road To Happiness," "a play for everybody," will be offered at the Murat Theatre, Indianapolis, for one week starting Monday, January 26th, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday when this popular actor comes here under the direction of Mr. Lee Shubert. It is his second season in this play of optimism.

The art of the majority of actors today is mechanical. Possibly less than ten per cent can be called inspirational. Mr. Hodge's acting belongs in the last class, mainly because he realizes it is essential for an actor to feel his role in order, in turn, to translate to the audience the emotions and impressions which should sway him. In the story, Viola Hardecastle returns to her native village after a year's absence at boarding school, under circumstances which cast the suspicions of the village folk upon her as being the mother of a founding discovered upon the porch of her step-father's home. Ben Hardecastle, a stiff-necked hypocrite is on the point of turning his step-daughter into the street when Jim Whitman (the role played by Mr. Hodge) volunteers to give the wretched and innocent girl shelter with his mother. For this he receives the condemnation of the village and the implacable enmity of Hardecastle, who, from that moment on, consecrates his life to the driving of Whitman from the village. To complicate affairs, Whitman, who is a struggling lawyer, falls in love with Eva Hardecastle, the youngest daughter of Hardecastle, his love finding response in her heart. The interest of the play from this situation on, clusters around the futile efforts of Hardecastle to drive Whitman from the town and the earnest efforts of Whitman to regenerate Hardecastle and make him see the folly of his own acts. The poor boy's irresistible optimism and quaint philosophy ultimately win.

Thumbs of the Apes.

The gorilla and chimpanzee, which belong to the higher order of apes, have many points of resemblance to man, but there is one thing they cannot do—that is, twiddle their thumbs. In the gorilla the thumb is short and does not reach much beyond the bottom of the first joint of the forefinger. It is very much restricted in its movements, and the animal can neither twiddle his thumbs nor turn them round so that the tips describe a circle. There are the same number of bones in the hand of a gorilla as in the hand of a man, but the thumbs of the monkey have no separate flexor or bending muscle. This is why a monkey always keeps the thumb on the same side as the fingers and never bends it round any object that may be grasped. In the gorilla the web between the fingers extends to the second joint, the fingers taper to the tips, and there is a callosity on the knuckles on which the animal rests when walking on all fours.

said it would be found in every place that a few men always pay the freight.

The building department, he showed, would instigate the movement for people to own their own homes. He told of the plan in Muncie which had been so successful. The city beautiful department, he said, had a big and comprehensive plan to work out.

The duty of the department of amusement will be to make Rascally attractive, he said. He recalled how the young men are leaving the small towns and drifting to the larger cities simply because the folks back home took no interest in them. He cited an incident from his own youth. The boys of his town organized a ball team and took up a collection to buy suits and equipment. They got the fine sum of 75 cents. A brewery agent furnished them suits, providing the name of the company appeared on the breasts of the suit.

"Can you blame those boys not feeling loyal to that man in preference to the citizens of the town as a whole?" he added. "Seven of the twelve boys of that club are now in the major leagues and six of the twelve are confirmed drunks. A kind old man furnished a lot to play Saturday afternoon. And to cap the climax the women of the town got up a petition to stop us playing ball because we made too much noise. Not a boy is in that town today. Can you blame 'em? If the boys leave this town, it's half your fault."

He said the department of entertainment provided the C. of C. with something to do. He asserted that most of such organizations that cease to exist die of dry rot. He recalled that there was an organization here and no one would say it did not do good, but it pays always because meetings were held but there was nothing but a cut and dried program.

Anthony Schrichte, Lincoln Guffin, Will O. Feudner, Ben A. Cox, F. E. Wolcott, Earl H. Payne, and Dr. C. H. Parsons spoke briefly. Mr. Charles suggested the naming by the chairman of a committee of three to pick an executive committee of twelve which has in charge the membership campaign. The committee of three which did the work was Dr. F. G. Hackleman, Jack Knecht and Will O. Feudner.

PIECES OF SILVER.

They Supplanted Cacao Beans as the First American Currency.

Before Mexico was invaded by the Spaniards coins were unknown there, the natives using in place of money the smallest cacao beans, reserving those of larger size and better quality for the manufacture of a liquor to which they were addicted.

About fourteen years after the conquest—that is to say, about 1535—Castilian coins began to make their appearance in Mexico. As they arrived only in very small quantities, they were insufficient for the needs of trade. It was then that the viceroy ordered the manufacture in the City of Mexico of small pieces of silver of a certain weight.

These pieces were not stamped with any coinage mark, and their value was determined entirely by their weight. From them was derived the name "peso."

These pieces of silver remained in circulation a number of years, and pieces of gold and of copper were also added in time. Soon, however, it was found that this sort of circulating medium made fraud easy, and the Spanish government established three mints, granting them a perpetual existence for America.

The coinage of money in the City of Mexico was actually begun during the reign of Viceroy Antonio de Mendoza, who established a mint in buildings belonging to the Marquis del Valle. Here it remained only a short period, being transferred first to the council building and later to the viceregal palace.

During all this time the coinage was of a considerable amount and the facilities for the establishment were not sufficient to meet the demands made upon it for coins, for which reason frequent demands for minting apparatus are found in the records. In the year 1778 the mint was established in the Apartado building and has continued since then in the street of that name. From the declaration of independence until the year 1847 the mint was rented out to contractors.—New York Sun.

SURGERY TO MAKE US TALL OR SHORT

Scalpel Now Holds out Hope to Giants and Midgets.

TEST ON BOY SKYSCRAPER.

Remarkable Achievements Credited to Experimenters In Efforts to Help the Undersized—Say Pituitary Gland Is Responsible For Extremes In Human Development.

Surgery is being put to the unusual test of regulating the height and physical development of the human body. An overgrown boy is the subject of the latest experiment. If it bears out the conclusion of several eminent anatomists it soon will be a common resort to make an incision at the side of the head, trim down a gland the size of a bean at the base of the brain, and any tendencies to develop into the giant class will be arrested. On the other hand, should the subject, seemingly stationary at four feet six inches, wish to join the five foot ten class all that will be necessary is to inject invigoration into this bean shaped gland, increase its size, and forthwith the pygmy will take on the proportions of a well developed individual.

The operation just performed was upon a boy of fifteen, who had attained a height of six feet seven inches and had shown physical indications of growth still longer. The operation was to put a stop to this abnormal growth and at the same time to give the rest of the body and his mind a chance to catch up.

The mind generally has been considered the ruling power in physical makeup, but if recent discoveries are read aright it would appear that there is another part of our organism which is our vital master. This is what the anatomist calls the pituitary gland.

Gland That Governs Height.

Now, we are told, the pituitary gland is not a part of the brain, although associated with it. It weighs in a normal person something like half a gram and is shaped after the fashion of a small peanut. But its importance is not to be judged by its size, although its abnormal enlargement in some instances really led to the first revelations as to its functions.

The initial inkling of its workings was disclosed so recently as the late eighties, and a little of this history is told in the New York Press.

In the far away dawn of living vertebrates the pituitary gland is supposed to have performed a peculiar duty, and until of late it was imagined that the days of its usefulness long had passed. According to comparative anatomy, there was a time when the vertebrate creatures had an opening at the back and roof of the mouth cavity which provided a direct passage to the brain. Standing watch at the inner end of this vital highway was the pituitary gland, which regulated the manner in which air and water and food should be assimilated and apportioned in maintaining the physical wellbeing and in supplying energy for the active operations of life.

There came a time when this cleft closed. The brain withdrew from its quondam intimacy with the mouth. The pituitary gland, or body, elected to share this seclusion. Accordingly, early anatomists jumped to the conclusion that its days of effective service were over, believing it of no more use in our physical economy than the troublesome vermiform appendix. However, they were woefully in error, and their followers have pretty generally shared in the mistake until within the last quarter of a century.

The pituitary body is what is called a ductless gland—that is, there is no direct outlet for the secretion which it generates. Just the same, it manages to send its chemical agents, called hormones, by devious channels not only into the circulating blood but into the nervous system as well, inducing different effects in each of these directions.

Hold Out Hope For the Undersized.

The two lobes of this little body have separate duties. The front lobe is the one commonly enlarged in cases of gigantism and acromegaly, and its secretion has to do directly with bone building and possibly with the growth of our body substance generally.

The surgeons referred to in the New York Press are bent upon curbing gigantism, but say they have done remarkable work of late in helping those that have lagged in their physical development, so that not only may they aid the overgrown but ultimately the undersized as well. Apparently decreasing the power of the gland will help in one direction and increasing the power in the other.

An operation performed on a giant revealed that the abnormal size of the pituitary gland was directly responsible for his great height.

President Gilmore of Federals Announces Signing of Star Philadelphia Battery.

PLAYERS DENY IT IS TRUE

(By United Press.)

Chicago, Jan., 21.—At last the Federal league and organized ball have clashed in their war. President Gilmore of the new league today wired the Philadelphia National league club that Brennan and Killifer, battery of the "Phillies," had signed with the Chicago Feds. "Both are our players and their contracts will be protected," said Gilmore.

The wires from Philadelphia this afternoon confirmed the announcement by Killifer that he and his battery mate had signed a three-year contract with the "Phillies" and had refused their Federal contract.

PLENTY OF WINTER AHEAD.

There will be no lack of winter weather anywhere in the United States if government weather bureau experts read the signs aright. Inquiries at the bureau as to the prospects of a mild winter were met with the statement that storms merely were slightly delayed, but that nothing had come under the department's observation to indicate less than the usual rain or snow fall.

Hard Work to Beg.

"Anybody who works for a living in Chicago is a 'sucker'. A good hard-luck story will get money on the street any time."

So says a professional beggar who for years has played easy "suckers" and, as he imagines, without working.

But the chances are that to catch his "suckers" he has had to work harder than many an honest man who makes a good living. And now he is in the poor house.

It is harder to beg a dollar than to earn one.

It is harder to frame a plausible lie than to tell the truth; harder to appeal to generosity than to business sense.

And he who gets a dollar for nothing in this world has to exert enough ingenuity and effort to have earned it twice over.

The faker, binding his arm to his body and displaying an appealing empty sleeve, stands all day and far into the night in all kinds of weather for a charitable pittance which an honest workman at wholesome and congenial occupation would despise as paltry pay.

The higher grade beggar whose ingenuity, good address and knowledge of human nature secure for him a poor living might, with the same qualities and half the work, make twice the money honestly.

It is the same with crime. There is no more arduous and dangerous occupation, and none calling for more ingenuity and skill, than that of burglary; and yet the professional burglars who ever get rich are precious scarce.

The old scam in "The Vicar of Wakefield," who was constantly tricking and cheating his honest neighbor, went to debtors' prison, while the honest man, though duller and constantly robbed, steadily prospered and found life easy.

Only fiction? It is a page from everyday life.

record, from which the vouchers are drawn.

Even the coal heavers at the plant unloaded more coal in the five days in January than they did the three weeks in December. They were cut accordingly. It was intimated last night that the books might be turned over to the state board of accounts for examination and the records may be gone into farther back in the Black administration. When the former city employees did not get their money two weeks ago several told Treasurer Stech that it did not make any difference as they would be on the pay roll anyway. Harry Rainey presented a claim against the council that was identical to the one allowed and passed over by the old council. Elmer Litteral did the same thing. Both claims were disallowed. Former health officer, Dr. Lewis presented a claim from Dan Matlock for one thousand pounds of coal which was supplied to a man held in quarantine by the health board. The bill was not allowed and if Matlock wants his money he will have to go to the county, as the city has no appropriation for things of this kind.

Two ordinances were passed under the suspension of rules last night. The first appropriated $992.12 to pay the labor claims which were on file when this council took office. The claims included the salaries due the officials and employees. The second ordinance was a bond ordinance calling for $20,000. It is to take up the outstanding notes and thus save the city the interest paid to the banks. The bond ordinance calls for forty coupons in twenty equal series and bearing four per cent interest. The first coupon is not due until July 1st, 1916. Bids for the bonds are to be received in two weeks or after the publication as provided by law. The city attorney was given the power to draw up the bonds and have them printed.

Superintendent of the water and light plant, A. T. Mahin, submitted a written report to the council on conditions at the plant since he took charge. Mr. Mahin reported that Boiler No. 2 was found in bad condition. The brick work over the stokers was burnt out, and this was repaired. It was reported that several fire hydrants were entirely out of commission, but would be repaired as fast as the men could get to them. Mr. Mahin recommended that the contracts that the former council had for coal, meters and lamps be carried out by the present council. He reported that the outside water system was in need of immediate attention. He stated that a place to keep the supplies was needed very badly and suggested that the committee take this up at once. It is almost certain that a stock room will be obtained before the council employs a bookkeeper and stock keeper.

Councilman Brann stated that several people had complained to him regarding boys and men riding bicycles on the sidewalk. There is an ordinance against this and the police was ordered to enforce it regardless of who the offender is.

The street and alley committee was given the power to purchase two or three cars of stone, as the streets are needing attention.

Fire Chief Easley reported to the council that he was not yet ready to make his report and recommendations to the council. He was given further time. He was given permission to order a chemical tank and a nozzle to be displayed to the council. They will be ordered on approval.

The clerk was given the power to draw an order for $549 when needed to pay bond coupons due January 22. The coupons are from the $12,000 issue of last January.

The members of the Ninth Street Baptist church appealed to the council in an effort to quiet the disturbances that have been going on there recently. They allege that a gang of boys have disturbed their

REFUGEE CAMP

Twenty-Five Hundred Mexican Federal Fighters Now Quartered There and More Expected.

MIXED CROWD ASSEMBLED

Were Driven Out of Ojinaga by Villa's Victorious Forces—Regards For Comfort Given.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 21.—Twenty-five hundred Mexican federal fighters and camp followers are now interned at Fort Bliss. More are coming today to complete the full quota of the Mexican federal refugees who fled from Ojinaga to Texas and surrendered to the United States soldiers when driven from their trenches by the rebels.

Generals Mercado, Landa, Aduna and Romero arrived with the first three trains. The other trains will bring Generals Castro and Oppinault.

As rapidly as the federal fighters reached the refugee camp they were assorted to their places on the company streets, their kettles unstrapped and food was issued to them by an American camp cook, assisted by a Mexican captain, who had to keep a sharp watch to prevent returning for more food. The Mexican soldiers were put to work sawing firewood, digging trenches for the garbage and setting up additional tents. The tents for the Mexican officers are separated from those of the soldiers quite a distance. The federals are divided into company organizations and are in command of their own officers.

The barbed wire stockade has not yet been completed, but there is a cordon of mounted and foot soldiers around the entire camp, with two privates constantly guarding Generals Mercado, Landa, Aduna and Romero. The prisoners are dressed in all kinds of costumes, few having complete outfits. The camp followers carried pots, pans, kettles and bedding with them, many having their small children on their backs. One woman had a sack full of chickens which she had carried from Ojinaga to Fort Bliss. A little Mexican boy rode behind an American trooper, his feet so sore from the long march that they were bandaged with rags. Many of the women were barefooted, while others wore the cheap Mexican sandals. Few had shoes.

As soon as the camp followers reached the camp and were distributed along the company streets, they set up their campfires and started to cooking beans and patting out tortillas, apparently happy at least that the traveling was over and they were to settle down to a life of quiet for a time.

There will be but one gate in the high barbed wire stockade, and this will be closely guarded. Electric lights will be strung about the camp, in the tents and at the gates. Within the stockade will be an exchange where the prisoners may purchase any articles they may desire.

The United States will have to pay out $1,400 every day for housing and feeding 4,500 federal prisoners and refugees. In other words, it will cost the American people nearly $1 a minute that the prisoners and refugees remain as "guests" in this country.

BRIEF WASHINGTON ITEMS

Several Matters of Interest to Indians Noted Down Here.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Henry A. Palmer, for many years with the Indianapolis News, has begun service with the Associated Press here as a member of the force assigned to the United States senate.

Representative Finly Gray has recommended the appointment of Merriam Straughn to be postmaster of Cambridge City, to succeed Peter H. Zehrung, whose commission has expired.

Representative Barnhart lately introduced two public building bills. One provides for an appropriation of $65,000 for the construction of a post-office at Plymouth. The other authorizes a similar appropriation for a postoffice at Warsaw. Representative Barnhart has been reappointed director of the Red Cross for Indiana.

Charles F. Grim, a Republican carrier out of Poseyville, has been removed from office on a charge of gambling on Sunday. His successor will be chosen by Representative Lieb.

Indiana's ultimate share of federal aid in carrying on agricultural extension work, as provided for by the Lever bill that has passed the house, will be $94,800 a year on a $3,000,000 basis. Its allotment is estimated by the percentage of rural population in the state.

The house elections committee voted unanimously for the seating of Representative J. M. C. Smith, Republican, of Michigan, over Claude Carey, Democrat.

WOMAN JUSTICE
SENTENCED MAN

Squire at Laporte Sends Him to the County Jail for 25 Days for Mistreating Wife.

IS THE FIRST IN THIS STATE

(By United Press.)

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 21.—Indiana's only woman justice of the peace is Mrs. William E. Anstiss, bride of Laporte's new chief of police.

A man with whom the woman justice had a wordy battle in court one day came back the next day and wanted to marry her.

Mrs. Anstiss once performed a marriage ceremony at a railroad station, with the trainmen as witnesses, because the couple wanted to catch the train soon due.

The only woman justice of the peace sentenced a big man to the county jail for twenty-five days for mistreating his wife.

These are only a few of her experiences in her office. Her former husband, C. D. Hess, was a prominent operative and theatrical manager. Mrs. Anstiss has been prominent in the grand chapter of the Eastern Star of Indiana and she served one term as president of the Indiana department of the Woman's Relief Corps. Chief of Police Anstiss was deputy sheriff during the Guinness case and was later elected sheriff.

Used Mails to Defraud.

Indianapolis, Jan. 21.—James E. Dameron of Evansville, a commission merchant, was fined $200 and costs by Judge Anderson in the United States district court on a charge of using the mails to defraud. He was specifically charged with failure to pay for grain and fruit which he solicited through the mails.

Lineman Fatally Shocked.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 21.—William Hyatt, a lineman employed by the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, is dying from injuries suffered when he fell across two high tension wires.

Miss Alice A. Holmes, ninety-three years old, the "blind poetess of Jersey City," is dead.

CHURCH CANVASS ON TOMORROW

Effort Will be Made to Reach Every Member of St. Paul M. E.
Congregation.

LUNCHEON ON FOR NOON HOUR

Everyone is Enthusiastic and Prospects Are For a Very Profitable Day.

Extensive preparations have been made for the "every-member" canvass which will be conducted by the Methodist church tomorrow. Communications have been sent to each member of the church whose correct address could be obtained. Cards have been mailed to the canvassers inviting the co-operation of each and urging each to be present at the church tomorrow morning by 8:30 o'clock.

A short address will be given by Dr. V. W. Tevis before the canvassers start out. The canvass will begin promptly at nine o'clock. The canvassers will go in pairs. With this arrangement it is estimated that the canvass cannot be made in a day with less than fifty men. It is the plan to visit the country members as well as those residing in town.

The members of the congregation are invited to either come to the church or to stay at home tomorrow that the canvassers may not miss them. The Ladies Aid society is also co-operating in the canvass in its own inimitable way.

A tempting lunch will be served by this organization at the church during the noon hour. This lunch will not be restricted to those making the canvass. All the men who worship at the church are invited to come to the church at noon to eat their lunch whether they are participating in the canvass or not.

At the meeting of the Ladies Aid society yesterday sixty-five women were present who were enthusiastic over the prospect of the canvass, and who had met to plan for the noon-day luncheon. If the men of the church respond in such good numbers tomorrow and show as much enthusiasm the canvass will mark one of the greatest days in the entire history of the church.

Immediately after the noon-day
lunch an address will be given by E.
B. Thomas. At the close of this address the canvassers will start out again to finish the work. At 7:30 o'clock there will be a mass meeting of all the members of the church in the auditorium at which meeting reports will be given by the canvassers on the day's work. The meeting will also be enlivened by a diversified program. The entire membership of the church is urged to attend this meeting.

CONVICTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Member of New York Gang Found Guilty of Killing Tom Murphy, a Policeman.

JURY PLACED UNDER GUARD

(By United Press.)

New York, Jan. 21.—"Dopey Benny" Fien, a notorious gang leaded was convicted of murder by a jury this morning. Fien was the leader of the gang and led an attack on the police in an east side saloon. With five gunmen Fien killed Tom Murphy, policeman after calling him a "squealer."

The assassination of Murphy was hardly more sensational than the trial just ended in which Fien was convicted. Feeling ran very high and the jury following their dismissal was escorted to their homes under a heavy police guard as it was feared members of the gang would attempt revenge.

ored organization, was formed with er, and Ray Williams, director. The other members are Harve Pruitt, gene Williams, Arthur Souders,

James Easley, J. W. Bundrant, Bert
Sommerville, Barney Hines and Geo.
Adams. A session was held last night at the home of Tom Overton and it was decided not to hold any more meetings until after the revival at the Second M. E. church had closed.

ALLEGES HUSBAND SMASHED DISHES

Mrs. Fanny Beal in Complaint For Divorce Says Wm. P. Beal Was Guilty of Cruel Treatment.

SEPARATED NOVEMBER 29

Mrs. Fanny May Beal filed suit this afternoon for divorce from William P. Beal. Mrs. Beal alleges cruel and inhuman treatment. The complaint states that they were married here September 1, 1910 and separated November 29, 1913. She alleges that he had a violent temper and would fly into rages, frequently without provocation and would swear at and curse her and call her vile names. When in a rage, it is stated in the complaint that he would break up the dishes and furniture. She also alleges that he refused to go places with her and would spend his evenings around pool rooms instead of furnishing her clothing and providing for her. She states that she was compelled to work by the day at housecleaning and that the cruel manner in which he treated her extended over a greater part of their married life.
The complaint stated that he deserted her on three different occasions previous to their last separation. Mrs. Beal says that on Nov.
29 he deserted her and that she is certain that he is out of the state.
Samuel L. Trabue represents Mrs.
Beal.

600 and 800 men have called there since the present administration

ANNUAL COST TO STATE IS LARGE

Figures of State Board of Charities

Show That Insane Patients Average $204 For Year.

THERE ARE FIVE HOSPITALS

Total Number of Inmates in Institutions Given at 6,100—Apparent Lack of Room.

Indianapolis, Jan. 21.—It cost the state of Indiana $204.79 to maintain each inmate of the five insane hospitals during the fiscal year of 1913, according to figures just issued by the board of state charities. The total operating expense for the five institutions was $1,025,288.29.

While the state assumed, in its constitution, the duty of caring for all the insane within its borders, the counties, during the last fiscal year, were maintaining 430 of this class in poor asylums and fifty-seven in county jails. There were in addition, 110 persons who had been adjudged insane and were in their own homes or with friends awaiting transfer to the state hospitals.

At the close of the year there were 6,100 known insane in the state. Of that number 5,577 were in public institutions, 523 in outside institutions;
there were 5,090 under state care;
1,010 without state care. A certain proportion of the insane that were under furlough from the state institutions would eventually be discharged, the state board said. Lack of room in hospitals adequately to take care of Indiana's insane is woefully apparent, the state board declared.

The five institutions for the care of the insane are at Logansport, Richmond, Indianapolis, Madison and Evansville.

SAYS GIRL WILL BE PROSECUTED

Prosecutor States That Julia Flake
Will be Indicted as Accessory to the Crime.

PLAYS WITH CHILDREN TODAY

(By United Press.)

Galesburg, Ill., Jan., 21.—Julia Flake, the school girl who helped plan the murder of her mother to conceal illicit love for her stepfather, played with children at the home of her uncle here today. She bought papers containing her picture on the front page and read the accounts eagerly.

The prosecuting attorney today announced he would fix Julia's indictment as an accessory to the crime. He denied that the girl would escape prosecution.

Robert Higgins, her step-father, who confessed he shot and killed his wife, probably will be indicted by the April grand jury. Albert Higgins, wealthy farmer and father of the prisoner, employed two attorneys to fight for his son's life. The plea of insanity will be made, it is understood.

another meeting this afternoon to make arrangements for "Go-to-served by the churches here the first Sunday in February, which falls on February 1. It was decided this afternoon that the city should be canvassed next week and invitations issued to every one to go to church on that day. Next week each of the ministers will write an article for the newspaper on "Go-to-Church Sun-

the day.

Peculiar After Effects of Grip This Year

LEAVES KIDNEYS IN WEAKENED CONDITION

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are often very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney trouble. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50cts. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

ANOTHER FIST FIGHT DISTURBS CONGRESS

Kentucky Member Resents Cry of "False Statement."

Washington, Jan. 21.—Congressman Ben Johnson of Kentucky upheld his reputation as a fighting statesman by engaging in a fist battle in the hearing room of the house committee on the District of Columbia. The other entry was John R. Shields, a Washington attorney.

As a result of the brief fight Mr. Shields is nursing several minor contusions and the legislator's lean and classic features are scratched and swollen.

The trouble started when Mr. Johnson discovered that the attorney had come before the District committee to urge the enactment of a measure permitting members of the Washington fire department to ride free on the streetcars in the District.

Mr. Johnson promptly raised an objection to Mr. Shields's presence. He charged that the lawyer had acted as a lobbyist for the Washington railway crossing policemen about a year ago. "He is a lobbyist," Mr. Johnson asserted.

"There have been a lot of false statements made today," retorted Mr. Shields, whereupon the Kentuckian swung his right to the jaw. Mr. Shields tottered and put up his guard, only to receive a second wallop. Then he came back. In the clinching and rataplan of fists that followed Mr. Shields managed to take a header over a chair and Mr. Johnson went with him. After the crash Mr. Johnson was on top, at which juncture the lawyer landed an open-hand smash on the congressman's right cheek, laying it open and starting the blood flowing. At this point clerks and other members of the committee seemingly came to their senses and interfered. The congressman bawled for his "gun" and, promising the summary extinction of Shields, was hustled into the private office. The lawyer was lauded out in the corridor.

MESSAGE VERY WELL RECEIVED

Congress is Attracted by Recommendations Made by President Wilson Tuesday.

WILL ACT WITHOUT DELAY

Document is Promptly Referred to The Proper Committee Even Before Wilson Leaves.

Washington, Jan. 21.—When President Wilson read to congress assembled in joint session in the hall of the house of representatives his promised address on the subject of legislation designed to curb the supposed monopolistic tendencies of modern industrial corporations, practically all of the members of the senate and house were present. The address was well received and was indorsed in unusually candid terms by members regardless of political affiliations.

The opinion is quite generally expressed that the president's message to congress will have a reassuring effect on business. Aside from the specific recommendations for legislation bearing on corporations, the president's reference to the railroads, phrased in such a way as to give the impression that Mr. Wilson believes the carriers are entitled to increased rates, stood out conspicuously. The president said in this regard: "The prosperity of the railroads and the prosperity of the country are inseparably connected."

Conservatism was the dominant note in the address. The president confidently proceeded on the theory that all concerned agreed that certain corporate evils had to be corrected and that all should unite in a spirit of friendly co-operation to apply corrective measures.

To some of the more radically inclined members of the president's own party the message came as something in the nature of a disappointment. The temperate language employed by the president did not stir the extremists of the Democracy in congress. Regardless of fact that the message in the main expressed the view that the business interests of the country require all that the president in campaign utterances promised and in earlier messages suggested, the radicals appeared to be startled.

Conservatives of both parties cast approving glances from one to the other. Once or twice during the reading of the address Republican Leader Mann started the applause. True, Mr. Mann later took some of the credit of the new anti-trust program to himself, but he looked and acted approval as the reading of the message progressed.

Senators Lodge and Root, occupying seats together in the front row of senatorial benches, gave absorbed attention to the reading. Both listened with unaffected interest and both seemed impressed.

Majority Leader Underwood moved the reference of the address to the standing committee of the house. In this there was a dose of disappointment for Representative Clayton and his colleagues on the committee on the judiciary. So much of the message as referred to the creation of an interstate trade commission was referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. The remainder of the message, the suggestions as to legislation correcting alleged abuses in the matter of interlocking directorships in potentially competing concerns, corrective laws forbidding individual control of rival interests, and the other features of the bill were referred to the committee on judiciary.

It has been decided that no time should be lost in putting into the form of law the anti-trust program submitted to congress by President Wilson. The president discussed the matter at length with Representative Clayton, chairman of the house committee on the judiciary, and with Mr. Adamson, chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce. The president urged on his callers the necessity for prompt action on the anti-trust bills. He said it was of the highest importance to business that the bills outlined in his message should be enacted at the earliest possible date. Assurances were given by the president's callers that the committees would begin work at once on the task in hand.

In the house the anti-trust work will be divided between the judiciary committee and the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. On the senate side all this legislation will be handled by the committee on interstate commerce, of which Senator Newlands of Nevada is chairman. The legislation sought by the president will be embodied in a series of bills. The exact number has not yet been determined.

While the house will initiate the Wilson anti-trust program in the main, action is likely to be taken by the senate at an early date on one of the bills proposed. Senator Newlands today introduced a bill creating an interstate trade commission as recommended by President Wilson. It provides for a commission of five members, and the commissioner of corporations will be named as a member.

A Liberal Education.

That man, I think, has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will and does with ease and pleasure all the work that as a mechanism it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its parts of equal strength, and in smooth working order; ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work and spin the gossamers as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art; to hate all villainy and to respect others as himself.

Such a man and no other, I conceive, has had a liberal education.—Thomas Henry Huxley in "Lay Sermons."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Darwin K. Anthony.

ABOUT noon on Monday Edith Cortlandt received a caller. The name she read on the card her maid handed her gave her a start of surprise and set her wits whirling in speculation.

She was greeted by a gigantic old man with a rumbling voice. He was pacing back and forth with the restlessness of a polar bear.

"How do you do, Mrs. Cortlandt?" he began at sight of her, his big voice flooding the room. "I'm sorry to disturb you under the circumstances. I knew your husband slightly, and I've heard about you. I extend my sympathy."

She bowed. "When did you arrive?" "Just now. Came across in one of those blanked joy wagons—fifty miles an hour. I know everything, madam. What I didn't know before I landed I learned on the way across the isthmus, so don't let's waste time. Deuce of a position for you to be in—I understand, and all that—and I'm sorry for you. Now, let's get down to business, for I must get back to New York."

It was impossible not to feel Darwin K. Anthony's force. It spoke in his every tone and action. It looked out from his harsh lined features and showed in his energetic movements. He was a great granite block of a man, powerful in physique, in mind and in determination.

"In what way may I be of service to you?" she inquired coldly.

"I want my boy," he said simply, and she began to see that underneath his cold and dominating exterior his heart was torn by a great distress.

"You know all the circumstances of course?"

"I do. That's why I came straight to you. I know you're the keystone of the whole affair, so I didn't waste time with these other people. Kirk's a blanked idiot and always has been. He isn't worth the powder to blow to—excuse me—I mean he's just a ne'er-do-well. But I suppose I'll have to do my duty by him. I just had to kick him out. Sorry I didn't do it sooner."

"If you have cut him off why do you care what becomes of him?"

Darwin K. Anthony's eyes dimmed, but his voice rose fiercely. "He's my boy, and I've a right to treat him any blanked way I please, but nobody else is going to abuse him! These Spaniards can't do it! I'll teach them to lay hands on my boy! I don't care what he's done. They've got to give him up. And he's going back with me. He's going home. I—I want him."

"Why have you come to me?" she queried.

"Because you must know the truth if anybody does, and I want your help." His voice softened suddenly, and he regarded her with a gentle kindness that was surprising. "I've heard all about you and Kirk. In fact, I've known what was going on all the time, for I've had a man on my track night and day. You may know him—Clifford? Well, he followed Kirk that night after the supper to your husband, but Anson didn't dare call him to the stand at the hearing for fear this Alfarez would perjure more of his black and tans."

"So Clifford is your man?"

"Yes. I took him off my system and sent him down here as soon as I got Kirk's idiotic, impudent letter"—The old man began to sputter with indignation. "What do you think he wrote me, Mrs. Cortlandt? He had the impudence to turn down a good job I offered him because 'his wife might not like our climate.' Thank God, he had sense enough not to do that!"

"Then you don't know?"

"Know what?"

"That he is married."

"D—nation!" roared Anthony furiously.

She nodded. "A Miss Garavel. They were married a week ago." She broke down miserably and hid her face in her hands. He strode to her with a light of understanding in his eyes. Laying a great hand upon her drooping head, he exclaimed with wonderful softness:

"My dear Mrs. Cortlandt, I'm very sorry for you, indeed I am. Now—now, try to face it squarely. All good women are brave, and you're a good woman. We both love him, and I know we can save him if we pull together."

"Yes, yes!" She raised her drawn, white face eagerly to his. "It will only take a word, but I have been like a mad woman. I couldn't bear to give him up, and when I learned the truth I thought I could let him suffer. But I couldn't. He is the first and only man—"

"I know." He patted her in a way that said more than words.

"I couldn't have stood out much longer."

"Then you have proof?" His face was wild with eagerness.

"This. Take it quickly. I only found it last night. It had been mislaid in the confusion. I meant to give it up, I really did." With clumsy fingers she drew from the front of her dress an unsealed letter and handed it to him.

"Stephen was not a bad man, you see, and he had no intention of wronging an innocent person."

Darwin K. Anthony's pallor matched hers as he read the sheet; then he exclaimed weakly: "Thank God! Something told me to come straight to you. Something always tells me where to find the heart of things."

Kirk was considerably surprised that afternoon when a sergeant and two policemen came to his cell, signifying that he was to accompany them. He could not make out where they were taking him, and, despite their unusual politeness, they were dense to all inquiries. The coach drew up at last before a large, white building, and he was told to descend. Up a flight of stairs he was escorted, his pulses quickening with apprehension, down a long corridor and into a large room, where he saw Runnels, Colonel Jolson, Anson, Clifford, a dozen or more Panamanian officials—and he stopped in his tracks as his eyes fell upon a huge, white crowned figure that came to meet him.

A certain harsh yet tender voice pronounced his name. He felt his hands crushed in his father's palms, found the old man's arm about his shoulders and saw the deep set, steel blue eyes he loved so well wet and shiny. A sudden sense of security swept over him, banishing all his fears.

"My kid!" the old man said, shakily. "How have they treated you, Buster?" It was a nickname he had given his son when he was a sturdy, round faced urchin of eight.

"You came, didn't you?" Kirk said, in a voice not at all like his own.

"Of course I came, the instant Clifford cabled me that these idiots had arrested you. By—! They'll sweat for this! How are you anyhow, Kirk? Dammit, you need a shave! Wouldn't they give you a razor? Hey, Clifford, Colonel Jolson, come here! These scoundrels wouldn't give him a shave. I suppose you're hungry, too; well, so'm I. We'll be out of here in a minute, then you show me the best place in town, and we'll have a decent meal, just we two, the way we used to. I'll pay the bill. Great Scott! But I've missed you, Buster!"

"Wait, dad," Kirk was smiling, but his heart ached at his father's emotion. "I'm a jail bird, you know. They think I—killed a fellow. But I don't care much what they think now."

"That's all over," Clifford broke in. "We've squared that, and you'll be discharged in ten minutes."

"Certainly," said the father, "Cortlandt shot himself. Anybody but a blithering Spanish ass would have known it at the start. We have a letter he wrote to his wife an hour before he did it. She just found it and turned it over. She left here a moment ago, by the way, all broken up. She's a great woman, Kirk. That's not all, either. Clifford followed you that night and knows you didn't go near Cortlandt. Oh, you should have seen 'em jump when we flashed it on 'em all at once, and they learned who I was!"

"But those men who swore they saw me?"

"Bah! We've got that little fellow with the mustache, and both his witeesses. If they don't send him up I'll run in a shipload of my brakemen, and we'll push this isthmus overboard and him with it."

"I knew you could fix things."

"Fix 'em, fix 'em! That's easy! Say, how have you been getting along anyhow?"

"Great!"

"And you married one of these Panamanians, eh?" The father scowled. "Lord, I can trust you to make a fool of yourself."

"Say, dad. She's only—so big." Anthony junior indicated his wife's stature, smiling rapturously.

"Love her?"

"Do I? It's fierce."

"Humph! You'll have to get over it. I'll pay your debts and take care of you, but I can't stand a mulatto around me."

"There aren't any debts, and she's not a mulatto. She's a—dream."

Some time later Kirk found himself in the open sunlight a free man once more, with Darwin K. Anthony and Runnels on either side of him. But before he had gone a block he halted suddenly, saying:

"Williams! I'd forgotten him and his warrant."

"He's fixed," Runnels explained. "While your father and Mrs. Cortlandt and Colonel Jolson were getting you out of jail Clifford and I told him the truth. He's rather a decent fellow. They have caught the real Jefferson Locke or whatever his name is."

"No!"

"Yes, a week ago. He landed in Boston. Couldn't stay away from his own country any longer. Williams hadn't heard of it."

"What has become of Higgins?"

Kirk inquired of his father.

Anthony senior exploded: "Oh, he's back scorching up the Tenderloin, as usual. But you'll have to cut him out or I'll leave you here. That's final, understand?"

"I intend to stay here anyhow."

"Huh?" The old man turned with a start. "I'm dashed if you do!" Then savagely: "What do you suppose I came down here for? I'm lonesome. I want you to come home."

Kirk smiled craftily and looked at Runnels. "Well, what can you offer? I'm doing pretty well as it is, and I can't afford to lay off."

His father, in turn, appealed to the acting superintendent. "See! It's nothing less than blackmail. Is he any good, Mr. Runnels?"

"If there weren't so much politics in this job he'd be master of transportation of the P. R. R. That's doing pretty well, isn't it? We're both going to quit and look for new work."

"Do you drink, Kirk?"

"I haven't even had an alcohol rub since I left New York. But, dad, if you place me you'll have to take care of Runnels too. He knows more about railroads than—you do."

Mr. Anthony grunted a trifle skeptically at this and murmured: "He must be a bright young man. I suppose what he doesn't know you do. Well, how would you both like to come north and give me some lessons?"

"Do you mean it?" they cried in chorus.

"I do."

"Oh, there's Allan too. He'll have to go."

"Any cats and dogs you'd like to have drawing salary from me? Now, let's go somewhere and eat. I haven't tasted anything to speak of since Clifford's message came."

"If you don't mind, I—I'd like to stop at the Garavels' for a minute," Kirk said longingly, and his father scowled. "I'd forgotten this—wife of yours."

"She's not there," Runnels hastened to say. "I've tried to find her, but I was told she was out at the country place."

"Then I think I'd rather drive out there than eat. Won't you go with me, dad?"

"Well—yes! I want to see this banker fellow, and—I'm not so blanked hungry, after all. We'll settle this thing right now."

The afternoon sun was still an hour high when Kirk Anthony came down the hill from the Garavels' home and crossed the meadow toward the forest glade he knew so well.

Chiquita was there, huddled upon the seat where they had rested together, one foot curled beneath her like a child, her head bowed down disconsolately. From one brown hand, now drooping listlessly, a few wild flowers had scattered, and her slim figure was clad once more in the stiff, coarse denim dress of blue. Her other hand was toyed with her beads mechanically, as if the fingers had learned their task from long practice. Her dusky eyes were fast upon the lights that wavered in the pool.

As if to prove that the spot was really peopled by kind spirits, a gentle voice seemed to whisper the news to her and she turned to find him smiling at her. She rose and met him with her hands outstretched, her face transfigured.

After a time she leaned backward in his arms and said gravely: "You see! When one says many, many prayers the good saints always answer. The padre told me that I should never cease until you came, but I grew very tired, señor."

"Oh, no!"

"I'm free, you know."

"Of course! What else were my prayers for? Had my father allowed I would have gone to your prison, but he forbade it, so I had no choice. But every hour I prayed that he might give me leave, and I think his heart was yielding."

"I'm sure of that," he told her, "for I have just come from him."

It was some time later when the sun was dipping that voices sounded outside the wall of verdure, and Kirk heard Andres Garavel saying:

"Of a certainty I shall try that experiment, señor, for the ticks in this country are a pest to cattle. A little to the right and you will find the path. So!"

An instant later the two white haired men appeared.

"Hello! There you are, eh?" Darwin K. Anthony exclaimed gruffly.

"Where's that girl?" He paused and let his hostile eyes rest upon Gertrudis.

She saw a great, forbidding giant of a man scowling down at her with eyes

"You are Keer's father, yes? You are the Señor Antonio."

Mr. Anthony uttered a curious, choking exclamation and gathered her gently in his arms. When he looked up his eyes were wet and his deep lined face was working.

"I couldn't wait any longer," he apologized humbly to his son. "I had to come and see her."

"And then I hope you will like me," she said in her grave, quiet way.

"Your father has told me everything"—Garavel laid a hand upon his new son's shoulder—"and we have become good friends already. I fear I owe you a great apology, my boy. But if I consent that you take my little girl away to your country will that be reparation?"

"Then you will let her go with us?" Kirk cried happily.

"If she doesn't go I'll stay," Anthony senior rumbled. "I—I don't see how you ever did it, you're such a blamed fool. Now let's go back to the house, it's sundown."

"We'll be along directly," his son assented.

"There are chills in the evening air," Mr. Garavel protested.

"I'm sorry, but we were waiting for the fairies. They were almost in sight when you frightened them away."

Gertrudis nodded. "It is quite true, Señor Antonio. We heard them all about, everywhere." She placed her little hand in Kirk's, then checked her father's remonstrance, saying:

"Oh, it is quite proper for us to walk home together, even in the dark. We are married now, you know."

"Come on, Garavel," exclaimed Darwin K. Anthony. "You understand how it is." Together they went out through the fragrant path a little way. Then old man Anthony turned and called back to his son with a smile: "But I say, Kirk, don't stay too long; we're lonesome."

THE END.

An Offer by Local Druggists

Now Have New "External" Treatment That They Are Selling on 30 Days' Trial.

Money Refunded if it Does Not Relieve all Croup and Cold Troubles Quicker Than Internal Medicines.

The local druggists have recently imported from the south the new "external" treatment for all croup and cold troubles, known as Vicks Croup and Pneumonia Salve. The druggists whose names are given below are showing their confidence in this new treatment of offering it for sale in 25c, 50c and $1.00 jars, on 30 days trial. With each package brought you are given a refund blank. If you do not find Vicks better than anything you have ever used present this blank to your druggist any time within 30 days from the date of purchase and your money will be promptly refunded.

This new preparation will appeal especially to mothers as it is entirely external and can be used with perfect safety on the youngest member of the family.

The treatment is the discovery of a North Carolina druggist who found how to combine Pine Tar, Thymol, Eucalyptol, Menthol, Camphor, etc., in the form of a salve by a special process so that when applied over the throat and chest the heat of the body would release the ingredients in the form of vapors.

These soothing, healing vapors are inhaled with each breath at the same time the preparation is absorbed through the skin.

After a night's application you hardly realize that you had a cold as the head is clear, phlegm loosened, and soreness gone from the lungs. In cases of croup positive relief is assured in fifteen minutes. Sufferers from asthma, catarrh, bronchial troubles, hoarseness, etc., will find this treatment remarkably effective.

Don't hesitate to take advantage of this 30 day trial offer from any of the following druggists.

EUROPE HOLDS ALOOF FROM MEXICO'S SHORE

Will Use No Force to Collect Interest.

Washington, Jan. 21.—Dispatches from Paris recently received here setting forth the position the French government is said to have taken in regard to Mexico's default on the interest on her foreign debt, are regarded as interesting and important developments relative to the Mexican situation.

There is a disposition here to regard the action of France in pressing Huerta for payment of the interest due as a step taken not so much in the hope of getting the money, but for the purpose of establishing an early claim. It is believed that France hopes by this action to set up a claim for priority of consideration when settlement day comes in Mexico, and there is no doubt felt here but what she has strengthened her position for the future by this action.

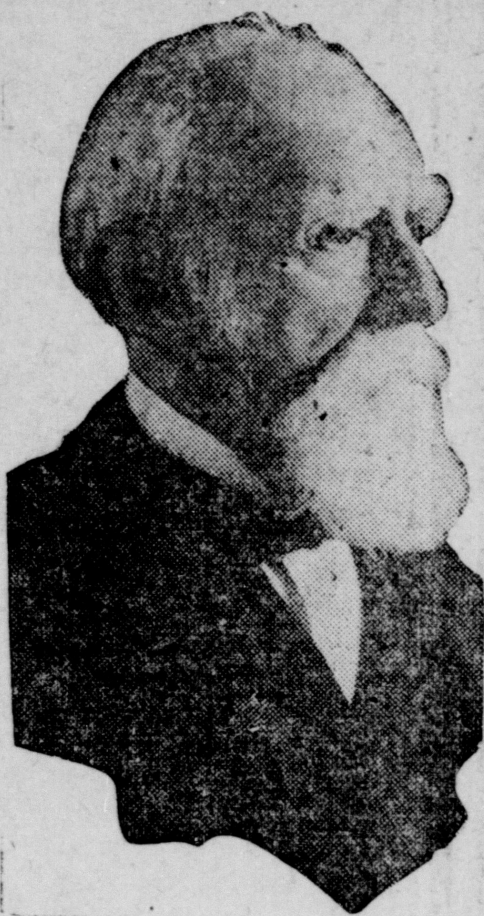

In view of the position in which President Wilson now has the powers, they being pledged to await announcement of American policy before doing anything in Mexico, the relinquishment by France of her contract right to seize the Mexican customs to the amount of the interest due on Mexican securities held by her is regarded as the only course of action open to the French government. It has been admitted by the Europeans that as long as they are not in a position to undertake the whole task of intervening in Mexico, there is no use in their trying to use force for any purpose as long as the United States' attitude remains as it is.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Rushville People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Rushville residents on the following subject will interest the benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

E. L. Hinkle, 641 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "In 1900 I was on the verge of Bright's disease. I had sharp pains in my back and was hardly able to walk. I couldn't rest well. A friend who had been benefited by Doan's Kidney Pills recommended them and I got a supply. I soon found that they were helping me and I continued using them until I was cured. I am glad to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hinkle had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WILL TAKE THE FIELD TO STEM REBEL TIDE

Huerta Preparing to Head His Army In Person.

Juarez, Jan. 21.—All the federal forces in northern Mexico, including the armies occupying Torreon, Saltillo, Nuevo Laredo and Monterey, will be soon withdrawn from their present posts and massed at San Luis Potosi, where President Huerta will take personal command and endeavor to check the southern progress of Constitutionalist armies, according to information which has reached rebel military headquarters in Juarez. Officials here place much confidence in the report. They say that Huerta is in the last ditch and believe that the only way he has the slightest chance of stemming the revolution's tide is to take the field in person. The provisional president, since the flight of General Mercado from Ojinaga, has lost confidence in most of his generals, it is said. San Luis Potosi is 600 miles north of Mexico City and a logical military point for a base of operations against an army advancing on the capital from the north.

Pancho Villa, rebel leader, has in all seriousness made application to Governor Colquitt of Texas for General Jose Ynez Salazar, charging that he wishes to try Salazar for the murder of Tom Fountain, an American, at Parral, over a year ago. Fountain was Villa's American gunner, who fell into Salazar's hands when Villa abandoned Parral. Governor Colquitt has no power over Salazar at present, as he is a prisoner of the United States authorities, though in jail in Texas.

IMPRESSMENT IS RESISTED

Mexican Indians Have Started an Uprising in Sierra Puebla.

Mexico City, Jan. 21.—General Juan F. Lucas, leader of the Zacatpoaxtla Indians, has started an uprising in Sierra Puebla. He has a force of 8,000 Indians, of whom probably one-third are well armed. Lucas is a famous fighter. The present uprising is due to the government impressing members of the tribe for the army.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Stephen T. Williams, known as the first business efficiency expert, committed suicide in New York.

Indiana sales of Red Cross seals amounted to more than $20,000, which is $8,000 more than in any previous year.

Resolutions by trade unions throughout the country are pouring into congress, demanding government ownership of copper mines.

Declaring they had information that wages would be cut, 400 unorganized employees of the Toledo (O.) plant of the General Electric company went on strike.

Grover Smith and Louis Hendricks, life prisoners, who escaped from the Moundsville (W. Va.) penitentiary, were captured while sleeping in a barn at McMechen, W. Va.

Irene Roche, expert wire tester at the Goodyear Rubber company's establishment at New York, was instantly killed when she inadvertently put her hand on an open switch.

Robert Higgins, in jail at Alledo, Ill., confessed murderer of his wife, says his fifteen-year-old stepdaughter prompted him to shoot her mother so that their guilty love might have full sway.

Robbers are believed to have caused the death of Captain and Mrs. Nicholas Shepard, seventy-six and seventy years old respectively, whose bodies, charred beyond recognition, were taken from the debris of their burned home at Tuckerton, N. J.
